You reach for me, I won't move. Your glazed eyes beg for understanding what I can't give. Your mouth is speaking words, which I don't believe. It kills me see you now, you are not the one I knew. The monster has strong hold on you, it calls for you, over and over again. I can't help you from yourself. Not from the monster you have created. We both know we have lost, this endless battle.