

If I broke into pieces, will you come to fix me. If I lost myself, will you come looking for me. If I lost my head, will you come to talk sense to me. If my past haunted me down, will you come and erase all my bad memories. If I sold my soul for a dime, will you still think I am precious. If I made bad decisions, will you still think good about me. If I lost all my hope, will you help me find it. If I no longer would feel love, will you come and teach me to feel again. If let you down, will you forgive me. If I would be the great failure Will you still love me?