

You sit in to a empty chair, across from me. You turn your gaze on me. Those familiar eyes, seems so strange. The face, I can not to recognize. The smile, which I do not remember. I can not read you face, your expression, I can not to interpret your thoughts. I know you are the same the same I was ones before.