

My path goes down the Grey Zone The edge of light and dark On the Great Wall I walk Which separates Kingdom of Heaven From the Shadowlands One might find it hard To resist the call Of the dark side The sweet temptation Of unlimited power But all this is a lie and an illusion The Shadowlands Have air full of toxic gas That burns you from the inside Like a corrosive acid Leaving behind only an empty shell Though I feel the desire To enter the light It's not possible in this life For my mortal being Is still bounded to the darkness By a chain on the ankle