

They say that you need to find your safe place The place where you can breath The place where you feel safe Feel complete Feel loved Feel valued Feel at peace And I have been searching that place For years I have searched I have traveled far and near But everytime I have thought that I have found that place The place where I feel safe I found out that there is no peace for me No safe heaven for me No way to feel complete No way to feel loved Because you are gone Your arms were my safe heaven The steady rhythm of your heart was my home Your presence gave me peace And now it is gone I will never find my peace You took it with you I can search and search I can wander high and low But my peace is gone My safe place is no longer here My reason to breath is missing And still you continue to save me day after day You exist only in my dreams now And there I'll be safe again Let me dream
